

Amanda Curtis, MSPT. Amanda graduated from Husson University in 2001 with her master's degree in physical therapy. She started her career in skilled nursing and acute care and worked in those settings for 10 years. In 2010, Amanda took a position with Waldo County General Hospital in order to help start the swing bed program and in 2017 she advanced her career by accepting a supervisor position for the rehab department. One of Amanda's passions is to work with the Parkinson's disease population and she started the LSVT BIG program at WCGH. She is also PWR! Certified for movement disorders and has implemented a wellness exercise group for graduates of the LSVT BIG program. Amanda is on the Safe Patient Handling Committee and is committed to finding ways for patients to be as functional and independent as possible while maintaining safety for staff and themselves.
